Welcome Message

Governor, Ibaraki Prefecture Chair, Executive Committee of the 17th World Lake Conference

Kazuhiko Oigawa

Session on the theme of the future vision of Lake Kasumigaura to link to concrete action.

Technical Sessions will be divided up into a wide range of areas, from ecosystems and water quality, to technology, culture, and citizens' activities, to offer opportunities for more specialized and concrete presentations and discussions.

In addition to an Exhibition that will introduce advanced water purification technologies, we have also prepared a diverse program that includes excursions around Ibaraki's major lakes of Kasumigaura and Hinuma, as well as a conference for children who create the future.

Ibaraki Prefecture has developed through ecosystem services, the blessings of our lakes. We hope you will take this opportunity in visiting our prefecture to learn much about the varied and abundant attractions of the area offered here, including the collection of the world's top levels of science and technology in Tsukuba and the industrial clusters in the Hitachi and Kashima areas, as well as the area's agricultural, forestry, and fishery products, history, and culture, all nurtured in the environments of lakes of Kasumigaura and Hinuma, registered as a wetland site under the Ramsar Convention.

We are looking forward to your participation of many attendees at the 17th World Lakes Conference that we can discover new knowledge and open up avenues to future prospects.

President, International Lake Environment
Committee Foundation (ILEC)
Vice-Chair, Executive Committee of to climate change and ecosystem services. It is for the second time that Ibaraki Prefecture hosts the WLC. The international community recently draw its attention to the development of the basin management in Lake Kasumigaura as well as in Japan, and has shown its expectations for the forthcoming WLC.

We are looking forward to your participation.

It is a great honor to hold the World Lake Conference again in Ibaraki Prefecture after more than 20 years since the 6th World Lake Conference (Kasumigaura 1995) was held here.

At the World Lake Conference in the past, we have discussed how to solve the myriad environmental issues occurring in lakes around the world.

At the 17th World Lake Conference (Lake Kasumigaura, Ibaraki, Japan, 2018), a wide range of people involved with lakes and wetlands, including residents, people engaged in agriculture, forestry and fisheries, business owners, researchers, and the government, will gather together to share information and exchange ideas on what needs to be addressed in order for us to continuously enjoy the blessings of our lakes, under the theme of "Harmonious Coexistence of Humans and Lakes -Toward Sustainable Ecosystem Services-." We believe that this will further strengthen cooperation amongst stakeholders and lead to new developments in solving lake issues.

This year's conference will feature a Policy Forum with the participation of policymakers both in Japan and abroad, a Lakes Session to promote collaboration within and between basins by referencing best practices, and a Lake Kasumigaura

Session on the theme of the future vision of Lake Kasumigaura to link to concrete action.

Technical Sessions will be divided up into a wide range of areas, from ecosystems and water quality, to technology, culture, and citizens' activities, to offer opportunities for more specialized and concrete presentations and discussions.

The International Lake Environment Committee Foundation (ILEC), based near Lake Biwa-Japan's largest lake, has promoted research and capacity development activities to support the sustainable management of lakes and their basins in cooperation with related organizations around the world. ILEC co-organized the World Lake Conference (WLC) with the host organizations every other year since its establishment in 1986.

Shiga Prefecture organized the Shiga Conference on Conservation and Management of World Lake Environment in 1984 (LECS' 84) together with its citizens who had pioneered to address environmental problems around Lake Biwa, and with a wide range of participants from academia and private sectors. LECS' 84 discussed the sustainable management of lakes which are valuable resources on our planet and a source of blessings for human life, and adopted "Lake Biwa Declaration," as its outcome.

The World Lake Conference (WLC) was organized in 15 cities in 10 countries where a wide range of stakeholders were able to engage in discussions and pass on recommendations for lake conservation to future generations. Over last 30 years, the scope of the Conferences has dynamically changed from water quality

17th World Lake Conference

(Lake Kasumigaura, Ibaraki, Japan, 2018)

Conference Aim

Water forms the basis of all life, and a variety of ecosystems that include humans have benefited greatly from it. Lakes are an invaluable resource for agriculture and fisheries, for industry, and for our culture, and the conservation of lake environments is of the utmost importance.

The 6th World Lake Conference, held in Ibaraki in 1995, adopted the theme “Harmonizing human life with lakes - toward the sustainable use of lakes and reservoirs”. Lake use, environmental conservation, the securement and management of freshwater resources, and the effects of eutrophication and chemical substances were discussed, and opinions exchanged with the aim of striving for harmony between humans and lakes. Furthermore, as a result of placing a focus on the undertaking of aquatic environment conservation activities and environmental education, a large number of river basin residents and citizens’ organizations participated in the conference, triggering an increase in citizen activities. Since the conference, a partnership between citizens, researchers, businesses, and government bodies has formed the basis of ongoing efforts to solve issues surrounding aquatic environments.

In recent years, topics related to ecosystems have been discussed at the World Lake Conferences. In 1992, The Convention on Biological Diversity was adopted based on the fact that biodiversity supports human existence and brings a variety of benefits to humanity, and plants and animals have no national borders so it is important that issues surrounding ecosystems are tackled globally. Countries around the world are mutually cooperating in research and information exchange.

Meanwhile, the Basic Law for Water Circulation came into force in Japan in July 2014 with the aim of comprehensively and integrally promoting policies concerning the water cycle in order to reassert that water is a resource that all humanity shares, to allow water to circulate healthily, and so that humanity can continue to enjoy the blessings that it brings. The law is based on fundamental concepts including the importance of the water cycle and integrated lake basin management, and establishes the respective responsibilities of local public organizations, businesses, and citizens, and the coordination and cooperation that should occur among them.

Humans have enjoyed the blessing of ecosystem services such as food and water supplied by ecosystems built on biodiversity. However, development activities and climate change have caused a drastic loss in biodiversity. At the 17th World Lake Conference, we will discuss how ecosystems can be maintained through greater conservation efforts – namely, the development of a society where humans and lakes can support each other and coexist in harmony. Furthermore, information sharing and opinion exchange around what measures need to be taken in order for humans to continue to sustainably enjoy ecosystem services will be held among people involved with lakes, including residents, those engaged in agriculture, forestry, and fisheries, businesses, researchers, and government agencies.

This conference is hoped to be a trigger for a variety of people to strengthen coordination with each other based on their individual responsibilities, bringing about new progress in the solving of lake-related issues.
